The Daily Oregonian.

No flag but the Old Flag—the Red, White and Blue,
With the stars of a Union unbroken and true!
Arise and defend it! ye sons of the brave,
Whose blood bought the banner your labor must save.

TUESDAY MORNING, MARCH 1, 1864.

The Position of the Union Party.

We give place to the following letter from an intelligent and patriotic citizen, whose suggestions are worthy of consideration. Other correspondents, in different sections of the State, during the last month, have expressed similar views, and we do not suppose that among the sincere friends of the Union, there will be any variety of opinion, either in reference to policy or duty. The call for a National Convention, published in our telegraphic dispatches yesterday, plainly announces the purposes of its meeting, and invites the co-operation of those, who will earnestly labor "for the suppression of the rebellion and the cause thereof." The issue is thus distinctly presented. Slavery has made the rebellion, and has given to it the means of protracting the war; it has struck down in their vigor more than half a million of the best and bravest sons of the Republic, and yet enables treason to resist the Government. Shall its infernal power be longer tolerated by a free people, or shall not the nation, now while the opportunity is offered, make haste to escape from the curse which the "sum of all villainies" brings upon the land? We do not believe that any loyal man will hesitate as to his course, or that he will [illegible] to avow his position with frankness. [illegible] are aware that some who profess to be friends of the Union, while such are in the majority, are very reluctant to commit themselves in favor of any doctrine which is likely to be unpopular, or which, at some future day may be used against them, as a proof [illegible] did not worship slavery, according to democratic creed. We do not think that such timid souls need be [illegible]. The anti-slavery positions of the party is rapidly winning favor: it is to carry the whole land, not less because it is right, than because the salvation of the country and its future and last peace demand that the power of the [illegible] of rebellion shall be at once and for [illegible] destroyed. There is no backward step in such a grand moral revolution as is now [illegible] with tremendous energy, and all [illegible] may be sure that they will [illegible] in their foolish efforts to re-[illegible]y in the high places of authority. CRUEL PERFORMANCE.—The Oregon Democrat says that our antique friend, commonly called "Old Jo," for short—and known among prejudiced admirers as "the Mary Ann of the Mexican war"—made a speech three hours long at Roseburg, on the 22d February. Just think of it—to be obliged to hear him for three hours!—he compelled to speak that long, when talking half an hour will exhaust him to the bed-rock, and all this on Washington's birth-day! If all these are not the refinement and agony of cruelty, we cannot imagine what would be.

DEMOCRATIC PLATFORMS.—These patent machines for manufacturing sympathy with treason, all agree in opposing the Administration because the prosecution of the war will hurt the rebels, weaken their power, and compel them to submit to the laws.

GENERAL GRANT.—On the arrival of General Grant at Lexington (Ky.), lately, the citizens came in crowds to see him, and insisted upon hearing a speech. Mounting a chair at the request of the enthusiastic people who demanded a view of him, General Grant was introduced by General Lesley Coombs in the following terms: "General Grant had told him in confidence—and he would not repeat it—that he had never made a speech—knew nothing about speech-making, and had no disposition to learn." General Grant then quietly descended from his chair, went away and opened not his mouth—but the people cheered him as lustily as though he had delivered the most eloquent of speeches in their hearing.

CAMP HORTHER.—A private in one of our regiments amuses himself with putting some of the experiences of camp life into the style of a distant and similar age:

CHRONICLES OF THE 123d OHIO VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

1. Man that is born of woman, and enlisteth as a soldier in the One Hundredth and Twenty-Third Ohio, is of a few days and short of rations.

2. He cometh forth at "reveille," is present also at "retreat," yea even at "tattoo," and returneth apparently at "taps."

3. He draweth his rations from the Commissary, and devoureth the same. He striketh his tent against much "hard tack," and is satisfied. He filleth his canteen with "apple jack" and clappeth the mouth thereof upon the mouth of a whiskey barrel, and after a little while goeth away rejoicing in his strategy.

4. Much soldiering hath made him sharp: forasmuch the seat of his breeches is in danger of being cut through.

5. He covenanteth with the credulous farmer for many turkeys and chickens; at the same time for much milk and honey, to be paid for promptly at the end of each ten days, and lo! his regiment moveth on the ninth day to another post.

6. His tent is filled with potatoes, cabbages, turnips, kraut, and other delicate morsels of a delicious taste, which abound not in the Commissary Department.

7. And many other things not in the "returns," and which never will return, yea of a truth it must be said of the soldiers of the One Hundredth and Twenty-Third that he taketh nothing that he cannot reach.

8. He fireth his Austrian rifle at midnight, and the whole camp is aroused and formed in line of battle, when lo! his mess comes bearing in a nice portion, which he solemnly declareth to resemble a secesh that he was compelled to pull trigger.

9. He giveth the Provost Marshal much trouble, often capturing his guard, and possesseth himself of the city.

10. At such times lager and pretzels flow like milk and honey from his generous hand. He giveth without stint to his own comrades; yea, and withholdeth not from the One Hundredth and Sixteenth Ohio Volunteer Infantry, or from the Iowa, look expectant Hoosier of the Eighty-seventh Pennsylvania.

11. He streacheth forth his hand to deliver his fellow soldiers if the One Hundredth and Sixteenth from the power of the enemy: yea, he starteth at early dawn from Petersburg, often on a "double-quick" doth he go and toileth on through rough heat, suffering, privation and much "vexation of spirit" until they are delivered. Verily, I say unto you, after that he suffereth for want of tents and camp kettles. Yea, on the height of Monticello his voice may be heard proclaiming loudly for "hard tack and coffee," yet he murmureth not.

12. But the grunt of a pig or the crowing of a cock awaketh him from the soundest sleep, and he goeth forth until halted by the guard, when he instantly clappeth his hands upon his "bread basket" and the guard, in commiseration, alloweth him to pass in the rear.

13. No sooner hath he passed the sentry's beat, than he striketh a "bee line" for the nearest hencoop, and quieting a pair of plump pullets' murmurs of solliquizing, "the noise of a goose unveil Rome, how much more the flesh of chickens preserveth the soldier."

14. He even playeth at euchre with the parson to see whether or not there shall be preaching in the camp on the following Sabbath; and by dexterously drawing from the bottom a Jack goeth away rejoicing that the service is postponed.

15. And many other things doeth he, and lo! are they not recorded in the "morning reports" of Company B?

Yea, verily.

SITUATION REVERSED.—A COLORED SOLDIER GUARDING HIS FORMER MASTER.—A correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial, with the Army of the Cumberland, narrates the following incident:

A certain worthy old planter, who used to govern a precinct in Alabama, in a recent skirmish was taken prisoner, and at a late hour brought in to camp, where a guard was placed over him. The aristocratic rebel, supposing everything was secure enough any way as a prisoner of war—as a committee of the whole, resolved himself into "sleep's dead slumber." Awakened about midnight, to find the moon shining full into his face, he chanced to "inspect the guard," when, horrors of horrors, that soldier was a negro! And, worse than all, he recognized in that towering form, slowly and steadily walking a beat, one of his own slaves!

Human nature could not stand that; the prisoner was enraged, furious, and swore he would not. Addressing the guard, through clenched teeth, foaming at the mouth, he yelled out:

"Sambo!"

"Well, massa."

"Send for the Colonel to come here immediately. My own slave can never stand guard over me; it's a d—d outrage: no gentleman would submit to it."

Laughing in his sleeves, the dark faced soldier promptly called out, "corp'l de guard!"

That dignitary appeared, and presently the colonel followed.

After listening to the southerner's impassioned harangue, which was full of invectives, the Colonel turned to the negro, with,

"Sam!"

"Yes, Colonel."

"You know this gentleman, do you?"

"Ob course; he Massa B., and has big plantation in Alabama."

"Well, Sam, just take care of him to-night," and the officer walked away.

As the sentinel again paced his beat, the gentleman from Alabama appealed to him in an argument,

"Listen, Sambo."

"You hush, dar; it's done gone talkin' to you now. Hush, rebel!" was the negro's emphatic command, bringing down his musket to a charge bayonet position, by the way of enforcing silence.

The bubob was now a slave—his own valued negro the master; and think you, as he sank back upon a blanket, in horror, and shame that night, that he believed human bondage was a divine institution, ordained of God?

ADDRESS BY REV. MR. PEARNE.—The following correspondence explains itself. It is proposed that the address shall be at the Methodist Church, which will without doubt be crowded, and we trust that such a collection will be taken as will be an honor to the patriotic liberality of our city:

PORTLAND, February 18th, 1864.

REV. THOS. H. PEARNE, Sir—The people of this city feel a deep interest in the prosperity of the Sanitary Commission, believing that its work is of vital consequence to the brave men who daily expose their lives in defence of national liberty and integrity. The undersigned desire that you have recently addressed the citizens of Oregon at various places upon this subject, and respectfully invite you to speak to the friends of this noble cause in Portland, at such time as may be consistent with your other engagements.

A. Holbrook, A. M. Starr, M. S. Burrell, Thos. Frazar, H. C. Coulson, R. R. Thompson, T. A. Davis, Harry Failing, Thomas A. Sayler, John McCracken, Geo. H. Flanders, W. Jackson, C. H. Lewis, R. A. Low, W. D. Head, D. O. Field, A. C. Gibbs, Mark A King, Levi Anderson, Chas. E. Calef, J. N. Dolph, J. B. Harker, S. J. McCormick, L. H. Wakefield, H. L. Hoyt, P. S. Caffrey, Chas. Hodge, W. C. Johnson, S. B. Parrish, R. Hixon.

PORTLAND, February 18th, 1864.

Gentlemen.—Your note of the present date, expressive of your "interest in the prosperity of the Sanitary Commission" and inviting me to aid, by a public address, in swelling its funds, is before me. I agree with you in holding the claims of this noble charity in the highest estimation. The operations of the Sanitary and Christian Commissions form one of the sublimest chapters in human history; they stand out in bold and beautiful contrast with the treason and barbarities which have clouded the land and dishonored the age. When twenty millions flee to shield such like, and wounded soldiers of our armies. Its history presents in a nutshell the aggregate of the labor achieved by the women of the North, that is a monument to their assiduity and benevolence. The amount of labor accomplished in dollars is upwards of seven millions,—this by patient, earnest women, fighting the battles of their country at home,—and and the whole amount, in money, received by the commission from its commencement to Oct. 1, 1863, $857,715 33; $501,101 of which was from California. For the six months ending Oct. 1, 1863, the receipts were $115,752,42; disbursements $281,009,15. This shows the need of more to make the Commission effective.

Additional Eastern News.

BOSTON, Feb. 18.—An extensive auction sale of gold occurred yesterday afternoon. The prices obtained were: For California, 2 16-27; California Issue, 27; California Piece, [illegible], 206-27; California superior pulled, 45; California superior pulled, No 1, 27.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—The steamer McClellan from Key West on the 11th, has arrived. She left at Key West the steamer Dacotah, with troops aboard, and also the Tioga, Metamora, and Montezuma, and the price steamer Cumberland, captured a few days previously by the gunboat De Soto. The Cumberland had a cargo of ammunition, arms, etc., and was bound from Havana for Mobile.

CUMBERLAND GAP, Feb. 17.—The Provost Marshal of this place reports that the average number of deserters from Longstreet's army is five per day. Ah, of course, complain that they are heavily taxed of the war.

BOWELL, (Mass.) Feb. 18.—About half the town was destroyed by fire this morning.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—The Ways and Means Committee are considering the Senate amendments to the Deficiency Bill. The additional estimates only made amount to over sixty millions, and cannot be reduced.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—The Chronicle says: From a cavalry display made by the rebel forces, it is anticipated by army officers from the front that the ensuing campaign will be opened by a raid on a gigantic scale.

The conscripts with whom Jeff. Davis is filling up the Southern army don't seem to be disposed to quietly submit to tyranny that forces every man into the ranks. This is evident by the number of deserters continually arriving from Lee's army.

LEAVENWORTH, Feb. 17.—Advices from Colonel Phillips' expedition in the Indian Territory state that the penetrated further into rebel territory than had before been reached, and that he is marching on to Texas. His force consists of some Kansas troops and one Indian brigade. The rebel General Cooper's headquarters were at Fort Washita. Addison was at Preston, Texas, and Quantrell at Bonham's.

CAIRO, Feb 18.—The Memphis Bulletin of the 17th says: At last accounts, General Sherman had captured Meridian (Miss.), with but little opposition. The rebel General Polk was, until lately, at Meridian, but hearing of Sherman's advance he got out of the way. It is reported that he got to Jackson ahead of the time Sherman got to Meridian. It is also reported that all communication with General Sherman has been cut off, and there is nothing but conjecture as to his future movements. It was regarded as probable that Polk would try to follow on the heels of our advancing columns, but the fact that he was in our rear is regarded as the best possible assurance of the success of our plans in Secessia.

There is a rumor that the cavalry expedition, under Smith and Grierson, had a fight with the enemy in which General Smith was seriously wounded. The rumor is not traceable to any reliable source, and is probably unfounded.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—In the Senate, Wilson of Massachusetts, from the Committee of Conference on the Enrollment Bill, made a report, which was ordered to be printed and made the special order for to-morrow. The House provision for a three-hundred-dollar commutation is agreed to with the provision that it shall not serve for a longer time than one year. At the expiration of that time such person shall be liable to the draft. The bill as reported also frees colored persons who may be drafted, and provides that such troops shall not be assigned as State troops, but mustered into the service as United States colored volunteers.

DISPATCHES TO THE DAILY OREGONIAN, VIA SACRAMENTO AND PUGET'S CITY.

Dates to February 24.

PORTLAND, Maine, Feb. 23.—Only 26 of the Berkshire's passengers are unaccounted for. The Captain supposed he was four miles further off than he really was. He had signalled for a pilot, and at the time of the disaster was going at the rate of a mile and a half per hour.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 24.—The following is from Richmond papers:

Mobile, Feb. 17.—Official news from Fort Gaines says: Several mortar boats and four gun-boats [illegible] a fort row yesterday, seven or eight of which shook—no damage done. The officers' quarters were mostly demolished. A demonstration was made on Island at Dauphin's Island, but it was not carried out.

The Richmond Enquirer says: General Averill is preparing for another grand raid. He has a force of 50,000. The Charlottesville, Va., Chronicle says his force is at Lexington, Rockbridge county, Va.

The Rebel Congress adjourned February 19th, to meet again in May. The Congressmen published an address to the people, giving up to them the responsibilities of the war and appealing to Southern people to again fill the armies and drive the invader from their soil. In relation to peace, the address says: "Until some evidence is given of a change on the part of the Yankee Government, and advances given thereto for negotiation will not be spurned, we are of opinion that any direct overtures for peace would compromise ourselves. The effort would be fruitless of good, and interpreted by the enemy as evidence of weakness."

The Charleston Mercury, of February 19th, says: On Feb. 9th the enemy crossed from Folly Island to —— Island, and attempted to drive our small force back to Hallover, and holding their position until the 11th they advanced. Gen. Coquil soon arrived, however, with reinforcements, and an engagement ensued, lasting sixty minutes and resulting in the enemy retreating in much confusion, burning all the houses as they retreated. At nightfall they had crossed back to Kiawah Island, burning the bridge behind them.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—The Times' Washington special positively asserts that the Army of the Potomac is going to be formed into three separate Divisions—Sedgwick to command the right, Pleasanton the center, Hancock the left, and ——the cavalry corps.

The World's special Newbern correspondence of February 20th, gives the following: The Charleston Mercury says Secretary Chase is making every exertion to flood the South with greenbacks, which unless immediately checked will subvert our currency. The same paper says: The constant dropping of the enemy's shot and shell is telling on our part of the city.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Richmond papers of the 20th February say: The War Department has received official dispatches, dated Mobile, Feb. 11th, stating that the enemy had made a demonstration with gunboats and landed forces at Gordon's Pass, 35 miles from Mobile. No doubt the approach is made by Banks. Sherman's column is approaching by the Mobile and Ohio Railroad. Another column from Pensacola is understood to be advancing from the Perdido River, 10 miles from Mobile. The situation of Mobile is considerably critical. Another dispatch announces the repulse of the enemy with great loss at Grant's Pass on Tuesday. Another dispatch, from Gen. Maury commanding at Mobile, reports the enemy's force to be not over 10,000, and thinks the whole affair merely a raid on the Mobile and Ohio Railroad.

The Richmond Examiner of the 20th reports another Federal advance in heavy force up the Peninsula, with the advance at Barbaraville, but says there is no reason for alarm, as Richmond is covered from assault.

Charleston, Feb. 11.—It is reported Gen. Finegan has repulsed the enemy's forces at Lake City, Florida. Finegan's forces had not reached him. Another dispatch states that Gen. Wise had repulsed the enemy on Johnson's Island and is in pursuit.

JACKSONVILLE, Feb. 25.—Mrs. George Long, a widow lady, living at Applegate, about ten miles from this place on the Concord City road, was murdered this afternoon about 3 o'clock. A messenger has just arrived after officers. He states the lady to be 50 years old. Her throat was cut from ear to ear. The house was robbed of several hundred dollars and a quantity of jewelry.

EUGENE CITY, Feb. 29.—Mr. Reed has just arrived at this place with a small lot of dust from the Blue river mines, about forty miles distant from here in the Cascade mountains. These mines so far as prospected, are good for three dollars a day. Further prospecting will probably prove them still better. Good quartz prospects have been found. Parties are preparing an arastra for crushing. There is considerable talk about the new discoveries.

LATEST.

SPECIAL TO THE DAILY OREGONIAN.

BINGGOLD, Ky., 22.—Gen. Palmer occupied Ringgold to-day and drove off a small rebel patrol found at Colossa (?) Station, two miles distant, but did not pursue. This fair country is a perfect ruin—but seven families remaining out of a former population of three thousand.

CHICAGO, Feb. 24th.—A Chattanooga telegram, dated yesterday, says: It is thought here that having failed to accumulate a force sufficient for energetic operations, Longstreet is endeavoring to effect a junction with Johnston at Dalton. The two rebel armies combined will make a force of 60,000 men.

The Provost Marshal's report shows a total of 3,270 deserters from Johnston's army in January and February.

Gen. Palmer pushed a detachment into Lafayette to-day, driving the enemy out.

FORT SMITH, Ark., Feb. 23.—The bearer of dispatches from the expedition sent into the Indian country reports that the troops are 100 miles south of Fort Gibson, the rebels having returned to Red river. The Indian Brigade, under Col. Phillips, had a skirmish with the rebel Indians on Middle Boggy, on the 14th, in which 40 rebels were killed. Our forces pursued them to near Fort Arbuckle and then returned to the Canadian.

Foreign News.

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—The Hibernia, from Liverpool, 9th, and Queenstown, 10th, has arrived. The news is unimportant.

The report that, under the control of the Germanic Diet, Prussia had positively declared that she would respect the integrity of Denmark, is fully confirmed.

The Danes had retreated from Schleswig, evacuated Dannerwick and blown up their works at Husuna. The enemy followed the Danes to Flensburg, when the latter retreated towards Burkel. Several engagements took place with considerable loss on both sides. According to some reports the Danish possession of Schleswig is ended. It is thought the Danes will make a formidable stand at Duppell, where they will be supported by a fleet.

English periodical continue very hot Germanic. Conservatives hold that Earl Russell is responsible for the Danish reverses.

LIVERPOOL, Feb. 10th.—The Prussians occupy Flensburg. The Austrian loss was 1,100.

In the House of Lords, Earl Russell stated that Minister Adams thought it prudent to withhold Mr. Seward's offensive dispatch. Earl Derby was indignant that it had never been presented. Layard said America had not demanded indemnity for the Alabama's doings.

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—The City of Washington brings one day later news:

Russell and Palmerston both made explanations relative to the Danish question, denying the right of Austria and Prussia to abrogate the treaty of '52.

It is rumored that the Prussians attacked the Danes at Duppell and lost 500 men.

Duke Frederick was proclaimed at Flensburg.

The London Times says the Danes have lost everything at Schleswig but honor.

A "ROYAL LEAGUE," AMONG THE LADIES OF SAN FRANCISCO,—to get up a Fair for the benefit of the Sanitary Fund, is already in agitation. The Women of the West have led off gloriously in the good work, and their example will be widely followed in California. In Sacramento, and several of the Mountain Cities, associations are forming and plans maturing for Fairs to be held in aid of the Sanitary Commission. In the future time when the present fearful rebellion is recalled, and all its baubles are fought o'er again, one of the most brilliant features, that will shine forever in the light of a glorious humanity, will be the Sanitary Commission, and the noble work done by it in affording relief to the sick and wounded soldiers of our armies. Its history presents in a nutshell the aggregate of the labor achieved by the women of the North, that is a monument to their assiduity and benevolence. The amount of labor accomplished in dollars is upwards of seven millions,—this by patient, earnest women, fighting the battles of their country at home,—and and the whole amount, in money, received by the commission from its commencement to Oct. 1, 1863, $857,715 33; $501,101 of which was from California. SALT PANS.—The work of erecting machinery for the purposes of manufacting salt from water at the famous salt springs, below this city, is rapidly progressing. We observed at the Oregon Iron Works yesterday, all hands engaged in "pouring" in salt pan for the new works. The casting is six feet long by four feet wide, and about 8 inches deep. The thinness of the iron, for that purpose, it being but 2 of an inch thick, rendered it a particular job to cast, but it was successfully done. The proprietor of these new salt works is expending considerable money to start them, and we trust his efforts may be rewarded with success.

FREIGHT ON THE WILLAMETTE.—The increase in freights constantly arriving from the upper Willamette Valley are no doubt the effect of reasonable freight tariffs. Heretofore the expense attending the shipment of produce has deterred farmers from engaging in the business of sending more than a limited supply to market, but under the present regulations the whole bulk of their stocks can be marketed, and so long as there is a demand for it, it is a good source of profit to all concerned.

AN ORDINANCE providing for the building of an Engine House for Columbian Engine Co. No. 3, and purchase for the use of Protection Engine Co. No. 4, a Steam Fire Engine, Hose Cart and Hose.

The People of the City of Portland do Ordain as Follows:

2d. The contract for the building of said House shall be let to the lowest bidder therefor, according to plans and specifications to be hereafter adopted by the Common Council. Said contractor shall be required to enter into good and sufficient bonds for the faithful fulfillment of his contract.

3d, That the committee on Fire and Water and the Chief Engineer, be and are hereby authorized to purchase from A. H. Titcomb, of San Francisco, at once, one of Button & Blake's Steam Fire Engines, of the third size, to weigh not more than thirty-five hundred pounds, with tools, etc., as described in his circular, together with five hundred feet of best oak tanned loading hose of the same size now in use by this Department, and a hose cart properly built to carry the same. Provided, That the expense of the said Engine, Hose, and Hose cart shall not be more than five thousand dollars, delivered in this city.

4th, That the sum of eleven thousand dollars be and is hereby appropriated for the above purposes, to-wit: Six thousand dollars for the building of the Engine House, and five thousand for the purchase of the Steam Fire Engine, Hose, and Hose cart, out of any money in the city Treasury not otherwise appropriated.

5th. That ordinance No. 132, entitled an ordinance authorizing the purchase of apparatus for Protection Engine Co. No. 4, be and is hereby repealed.

6th, This Ordinance shall take effect from and after its approval by the Mayor.

Passed the Common Council Feb. 17th, '64.

United States of America, } ss
District of Oregon, }

WHEREAS a libel has been filed by [illegible] in the District Court of the United States for the District of Oregon, on the 16th day of January, A.

The Blossom in the Wilderness.

Do you ever form an estimate of the character of people, from the physiognomy of their houses, reader? I do. And so when the stage swept round the corner, I looked out eagerly for, as the driver had told me, about "ten rod up the road" stood the house of Philander White. His wife was my mother's own cousin, and I was just thirteen years old when I went there to make my first visit. There had been some quarrel between the families two or three score of years anterior to my visit; and though my mother and Mrs. White had never participated in this, the feud of their ancestors had doubtless evolved something of coldness between them.

But to "cut short a long story," for pen and paper gossip may be more dignified, but not a whit better than tea-party scandal—I had been an invalid all the previous winter.

When the soft April days, to which my mother looked forward so eagerly, came, they brought no bloom to my cheek, no vigor to my step. My constitution seemed to have lost all its recuperative power, and the doctor said, "Send her into the country, Mrs. May. If that doesn't help her she is lost to you."

Just before this Mrs. White had heard, through a mutual friend, of my illness, and the very day of the blunt physician's ultimatum brought a letter to my mother. "For the sake of our love, Jane," it read, "let all that may have come between you and me, at an earlier time, be forgotten. The grass is springing green on the hills of Meadowbrook, and now—in this late May—is the time for Jennie to come to us. There is a prophecy of health for her in the soft wind, that is lifting the edges of my paper as I write. We know she is your all, and we will be very tender of your darling. Will you not trust her with us for a single summer?"

And before another week had passed, my trunk was packed for "Philander White's, Esq., Meadowbrook."

I looked out, as I said, and there sat the pleasant white house, with its green window-blinds, between the shrubbery in front and the cherry-trees behind. My heart went out to it at once, as it did a moment later to the gentle-voiced woman and the fair, dark-haired girl, who rushed out on the broad, front steps, and kissing my cheeks, said, "Cousin Jennie, you are very welcome."

But it is not to tell you of that summer, though I look across the gray years to its green pictures in the May-land of my memory, that I have taken up this morning.

Suffice it, the mountain breezes of Meadowbrook did their work well; and when, in the early autumn, my mother came for her child, she could hardly identify the rosy-cheeked girl that rushed in, with her curls tangling about her face, and put up her rosy lips for a kiss.

I think it must have been nearly two months after my domestication at Aunt Myra's—for so I called my mother's cousin—before Uncle Charles Brace, her husband's brother, visited us. He was a minister, and Cora and I anticipated the gentleman's advent with any [illegible] pleasurable emotions.

[illegible] conceived notions of the gentleman's [illegible] and solemn, Puritanical manner, [illegible] regarded as necessary concomitants [illegible], soon vanished before the [illegible] dimplings of his smile, and the winsomeness of his manner. He was Uncle [illegible] youngest brother, not more than twenty-[illegible] at the time; and his religion had [illegible] and harmonized his fine poetic temperament without checking the outflow of that current of humor which sparkled in his character. "Uncle Charlie" was a companion in our rides and rambles, and [illegible] in all our girlish plans.

"[illegible] really mean so, Uncle Charlie?" [illegible] bright face was lifted from the [illegible] we were weaving into a [illegible] the parlor-mantle. "You don't [illegible] what you just said, that in every [illegible] is some fountain, some blossom in [illegible] wilderness of every soul?"

He put down his paper and came toward [illegible] "Haven't a doubt of it, my little girl. [illegible] I was just reading of the hardened [illegible] cried because the child gave him [illegible] marigolds,' corroborates my re- [illegible] ght that is in us cannot quite [illegible] the heart that might bring [illegible] hundred fold,' for the harvest of [illegible] never yet become such a desert, [illegible] good seed might take root therein."

[illegible] believe 'twould, though, in Farmer [illegible] You don't know him as well as I do, [illegible]rlie. He's one of the richest men [illegible] Meadowbrook, worth thousands and [illegible]ds. He's an old bachelor, you know, [illegible] in that great red house on the road [illegible]ary, you remember? Well, he never [illegible]rch; he never gives a cent to the [illegible] he never loved a human being, or did a [illegible]ng in all his life. Now, don't you [illegible] Farmer Keep [illegible] why, Grandma Deane [illegible] you for?"

The old lady, whose entrance put this sudden period to my cousin's earnest peroration, [illegible] slowly toward the rocking chair Cora [illegible] out for her. She was the oldest person [illegible] village. The hair under her cap, white [illegible] side snow, had imprisoned the sun- [illegible] of four score and ten summers. But [illegible] still retained much of the physical and [illegible]ntal stamina, which, with her active temperament, had made her so vigorous a woman for many years.

"What's that you're saying, child, about Farmer Keep?" said the old lady, with a pleasant smile, as she pinned her knitting sheath to her waist.

"Why, I was telling Uncle Charlie what a cold, hard kind of a man he is. You've always known him, Grandma Deane. Now did he ever do a good thing, or ever love anybody in his life?"

"Yes, he loved once a young girl, I remember."

"Farmer Keep loved a girl once!" repeated Cora, with a half contemptuous and wholly skeptical curl of her berry-red lip. "She's forgotten," she added, in an under-tone to her uncle and me. Grandma Deane was slightly deaf.

"No, I haven't forgotten, either," placing her hand on Cora's hair. "I have held Lucy Reid on my lap the often, and rocked her cradle—poor little motherless thing—too many times to forget."

Cora's look of incredulity had given way to one of curiosity. "Grandma Deane, won't you tell us all about it? Jennie and I will sit down on this big stool, and I know by that look in Uncle Charlie's eyes he wants to hear, too. Come, Jennie, let the flowers go;" and and my vivacious cousin established herself on the stool at the old lady's feet.

Grandma Deane slipped the yarn round her little finger, and commenced: "Let me see; it can't be more than forty-two or three years this summer, since Justin Keep came up to Farmer Reid's to let himself out for a hired boy through harvesting.

"The Reids' house stood a little this side of Stony Creek. There's nothing left of it now except the chimney, that looks out, gray and cold, from the green grass all about it; but fifty years ago it was a fine old place, with the lilacs in front, and the hop-vines running all round the back. Lucy was hardly three weeks old when she lost her mother. Her father never married again, and the child grew up there in her old home, as fair and sweet as the flowers about it.

"She was turning into fifteen when Justin came there that summer. He was a shy, strange, awkward sort of a lad, and the neighbors all said 'Farmer Reid never'd get the salt for his porridge out of him.'

"He'd been found out till he was eighteen, to some man down in Maine, and he hadn't a relation in the world that he knew of, nor a suit of decent clothes, when he came to Farmer Reid's.

"But, for all this, Justin proved himself a smart, likely boy, and the farmer, who, somehow, never was very fore-handed—I always thought his wife's sudden death hurt him—found that Justin was a real prize.

"At first he was gloomy and silent, doing his work, and taking little notice of anybody; but he couldn't stand it long before Lucy. I'd like to have seen the heart that girl's smile wouldn't have thawed out.

"She was just like a bird round the old place, singing from morning till night; and her blue eyes, they were like her mother's, seemed always letting out one laugh as her red lips did another. I never wondered her father doted on her as he did; and of course Justin wasn't long in the house before she tried to make friends with him.

"Poor fellow! it must have seemed very strange at first; for I don't think anybody had ever given him a kind word till he came to Meadowbrook.

"But he made ladders for her flower-vines to run on, and got slicll for the borders, and propped up the dahlias, and did a thousand other things, which took them out into the garden after supper, and made them like best of friends.

"Lucy had a playful, childish way about her, that made her seem much younger than she was; then she was small of her age, so at fifteen she didn't seem a day older than you, Cora.

"Well, she rode on top of Justin's hay-cart, and helped him husk the corn in the barn, and pretty soon the neighbors noticed a great change in Justin.

"He got him a new suit of clothes, and his face lost its old down look, and after harvesting, Farmer Reid made him an offer to stay all winter.

"So Justin stayed, and, taking Lucy's advice, went to the district school; and though he hadn't any education before, he went ahead of many an old scholar that winter.

"Well, Justin staid with the farmer four years. Then he had a good offer somewhere in York State, and he concluded to accept it for the winter only.

"Lucy Reid had grown into a young woman by this time, and a handsomer one, children, those dim eyes never looked on.

"I don't know how it happened, for Lucy might have had her pick of the boys for miles around, but somehow she took to Justin, and when he left they were engaged to be married one year from that time."

"Why, Grandma Deane, you aren't going to stop now?" cried Cora in alarm, for the old lady had laid down her knitting.

"No, my child," and she removed her spectacles and wiped her eyes. "But the rest is a sad story, and I must hurry over it.

"I don't know exactly how it happened, but that winter Lucy's father got into a terrible lawsuit with Squire Wheeler. There was some flaw in the title, and people said it was plain the old man must let the homestead go.

"They said, too, he'd never survive it; and better, perhaps, he never had, than kept it as he did. But one day Squire Wheeler, to all the neighborhood's astonishment, rode over to the farm."

A BLOW AT CRINOLINE.—The inconveniences of crinoline, says the Athenæum, have been so great in the Staffordshire potteries, that the principal manufacturers, Messrs. Copeland, Messrs. Minton, and others have forbidden the use of crinolines on their premises during the hours of work. In one shop alone, the losses by breakages of articles swept down by them amounted to two hundred pounds a year. The workshop became too small, and the work was impeded. The workwomen have submitted to the change with almost entire unanimity, and good will and now enter upon their work in garments like those of Greek statues.

FOR DISEASES OF THE

AND

DROPSICAL SWELLINGS.

This Medicine increases the power of DIGESTION and excites the absorbent into healthy action by which the WATERY or CALCAREOUS deposition, and all UNNATURAL ENLARGEMENTS are reduced, as well as PAIN and INFLAMMATION, and is good for MEN, WOMEN OR CHILDREN.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU

ATTENDED WITH THE FOLLOWING SYMPTOMS:

These symptoms, if allowed to go on, which this medicine invariably removes, soon follow

Impotency, Fatuity, Epileptic Fits,

Who can say that they are not frequently followed by those direful diseases,

"INSANITY AND CONSUMPTION,"

Many are aware of the cause of their suffering, but NONE WILL CONFESS

THE RECORDS OF THE INSANE ASYLUMS,

And the melancholy deaths by Consumption bear ample witness to the truth of the assertion that

Requires the Aid of Medicine,

to strengthen and bring it to the system which
